North Woburn at Wilmington line

By GORDON VINCENT

WOBURN - The saga of the so-called Woburn Heights project in North Woburn at the Wilmington line turned another contentious chapter this week when the city's Planning Board voted to send an unfavorable recommendation for a fill removal permit.

Woburn 38 Development LLC, which purchased the property in February, is seeking to remove some 200,000 cubic yards of material from the 0.81-acre site, which lies off Main Street (Route 38) near the Wilmington and Burlington lines.

Citing concerns mainly about drainage and truck traffic, the Planning Board did not endorse the proposal.

"It just doesn't look to me like this works," said Planning Board member David Edmonds. "Where you're proposing to concentrate the water is right above a couple of homes. I'm not convinced the water isn't going to come down on them."

The City Council has the final call on whether to grant the permit for fill removal.

Woburn Heights
Woburn's battle with the Woburn Heights project goes back almost a decade.

Rebuffed by the city in its attempts to develop the parcel, Anthony Santullo obtained a so-called Chapter 40B comprehensive permit from the state that allowed him to build 168 dwelling units with a low- and moderate-income component.

The city appealed the project all the way to the state Supreme Judicial Court, which in 2006 upheld the decision to issue the comprehensive permit, but construction never went forward and the property was eventually acquired by Woburn 38 Development, which according to Planning Director Edmund Tarallo "has an economic opportunity at the present time to provide the fill on the site to an end user" before selling the property to the Dolben Co.

Officials from Woburn-based Dolben attended a "neighborhood meeting" last month at City Hall to unveil a project that includes four 3-story apartment buildings.

Attorney Joseph Tarby, who represents Woburn 38 Development, noted Dolben

Final Performance of Season 5

WILMINGTON - On September 30, Dancing with the Realtors (DWTR) will host its final show for Habitat for Humanity. Dancing with the Realtors, created by Linda Covino of Northeast RealtyPartners in Wilmington, is modeled after the hit TV show Dancing with the Stars and has become the most successful Realtor fundraiser to date. DWTR began in 2008 and, since then, 11 shows have been held with Realtor associations across the state, raising $170,000 for local Habitat Chapters. Covino will be performing in the special showcases planned for the evening.

Beth McGaffigan, a Realtor with Northeast RealtyPartners and resident of Tewksbury, is excited to be back for her third time with Dancing with the Realtors. Beth has taken first place in her dance category in DWTR Season 3 and 4, and also took first place in the state finals in 2009 at The Eastern US Dancesport Championships in Boston. Beth is proud to be part of DWTR and to be giving back to her community.

Fifteen Dancers are currently training to perform on September 30, and this year the competition is fierce. Dancers consist of Realtors, Mortgage Brokers, Builders and Attorneys.

Dancing with the Realtors will take place September 30, at 6:00 p.m. at Memorial Hall

Meet the new Children's Librarian at Wilmington Memorial Library

WILMINGTON - Visitors to the Children's Room upstairs at the Wilmington Memorial Library might have noticed an unfamiliar face behind one of the desks - Barbara Raab is the new Children's Librarian, who was kind enough to spend some time answering a few questions from the Town Crier.

What was your path to becoming a librarian?

I had a completely different career before becoming a librarian. For nearly 20 years I worked as a research analyst and project manager, primarily at a non-profit research institution. While I was very happy, I suddenly felt like I wanted to make a change and get an advanced degree in a field where I could work directly with people. Public librarianship seemed like the perfect second career for me. I'd always been an enthusiastic public library patron, and brought my children to our town library in Acton countless times for books, movies and programs. I was very intrigued by the way the public libraries were evolving to meet the technological needs of their patrons while still maintaining traditional services to adults and children. In 2005 I decided that I would enroll at Simmons College to get a Master's in Library Science. Coincidentally (or maybe not), my mother had also made a mid-life career change to become a librarian back when I was in junior high - around the same ages that my children were when I went back to school.

What do you like about being a children's librarian?

There is so much that I love

A look at Wilmington of yesteryear...

The Cadillac taxi cab driver

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - Long before the era of the stretch limo, people in Wilmington were riding in style in a Cadillac taxi.

The Cadillac belonged to Aristides "Rusty" Brabant, who ran the North Wilmington Taxi. Rusty worked out of the North Wilmington Depot, and had a telephone box on the wall of the old depot. The phone had an extension at his home, where his wife Elizabeth would answer calls. Rusty would pull into the depot, turn around and park next to the phone. He'd unlock the box, pick up the phone, dial 99 and hang up. The phone would ring and he'd pick it up again. "Whadda ya got?" he'd ask his wife.

Rusty spent most of his working life at the C. S. Harriman Tannery in North Wilmington, where he was the union steward. That meant he was the man who had to bargain with the owner, Caleb Harriman. Caleb was a hard-nosed businessman and could hold his own in any argument. But he and Rusty had a mutual respect, and they treated each other as gentlemen. "Once or twice, he asked for my opinion on a subject - not that it mattered - and I told him," said Rusty.

The tannery was in operation for about 80 years, and Rusty worked there for 40 years, mostly as a "shaver." The tannery stood opposite the Whitefield School, in the area where the Registry of Motor Vehicles office and the WCTV cable television studio are today. Tanneries always had a problem with odors, and conductors on the Boston and Maine Railroad would announce, "North Wilmington, by the smell!" as the train pulled into the station.

Shortly after 1950, disgusted by the odors, new residents of the area began legal action that resulted in the closing of the tannery. Caleb Harriman died the day after Christmas, 1952. The tannery closed about ten months later. About 60 men found themselves out of work. One of them was Rusty.

Rusty was a step ahead of the game, though. Before the tannery closed, he bought Johnny Dias' taxi business. He went to the selectmen, "like the feller says," and told them he wanted to go into the taxi business. So he was granted a license.

For a number of years, Rusty ran ordinary vehicles, like a '54 Chevy or a '59 Ford. That Ford had 350,000 miles on it before he had to replace the muffler. The car seldom cooled off enough for condensation to form, and the muffler didn't rust out.

As Rusty neared 70, he decided it was time to ride in comfort. So he bought a 1958 Cadillac Sedan de Ville. The white Caddy had incredibly large tail fins and more resembled a plane than a car. Rusty kept the car clean, but it always had a distinctive aroma from Rusty's cigars.

Rusty kept the Ford as a second taxi, driven by former tannery worker Ralph Knight or Rusty's grandson, Wayne Gaulzetti. This at least gave Rusty a chance to eat and sleep.

Rusty would come into the Town Crier office, located at the time in the depot, make a pit stop and pick up a newspaper from Valley News in the back room. Dick Ethier of Valley News would often stir

Bring Susan's Kitchen to your table

BY SAM ALTOBELLO

Ready-made meals are all the buzz these days.

With many families having two parents working, having time to prepare dinner from scratch has become more and more difficult.

Fortunately Susan's Kitchen is near by.

Susan's Kitchen is a section of Lucci's Supermarket in Wilmington run by Susan Lucci. It is in her kitchen in the back of the store that she prepares the many ready-made meals offered at Lucci's that are usually served in a microwavable container.

The kitchen was started four years ago, after Lucci's father-in-law built it for her so she would not be forced to cook on the broken three-burner stove that was in the meat department. "There was a need for [the kitchen]," Lucci said.

Lucci has always had a background in cooking. She had wanted to attend culinary school, but after being prevented by her parents, she studied hotel restaurant management instead, according to Lucci. After that she cooked for years for her family. She recalled on one occasion, her father-in-law laughing because he was watching her cook for so many people on the holidays without getting flustered. That's where the idea for the kitchen started, according to Lucci.

"We do meals that are fully cooked, that people can take home and microwave. We do some things that are ready to cook," Lucci said. Some of the fresh selections that Lucci mentioned were dry rub salmon and chicken stuffed pork chops, both prepared and ready for the customer to cook at home.

"What we do is different than most supermarkets because it's all cooked on the premises, from scratch," Lucci says.

The kitchen makes restaurant quality dishes customers can enjoy from the comfort of their own home, Lucci believes. All the meals they prepare and cook are based on what people would want to make for themselves and what people suggest, according to Lucci.

Some of the foods that Susan's Kitchen regularly prepares are American Chop Suey, meatballs, and Chicken Broccoli Ziti.

A few other big sellers are their calzones, their lobster rolls, their turkey dinners, and their Chicken Pot Pie.

Customer feedback is very important to the kitchen, and there is no corporate environment dictating what they do, so the kitchen can respond to the customers' opinions, according to Lucci.

Since Susan's Kitchen started, it has been successful and continually growing, according to Lucci's husband, John Lucci.

In the four years since it had started in 2007, sales have increased by five times, John stated. "Our goal going into it was to have the right price point with a really high quality product," Lucci says.

Lucci's Supermarket and Susan's Kitchen are located at 211 Lowell Street (Route 129) in Wilmington.

Lucci's History

Lucci's Supermarket is the store customers have been trusting for over 55 years.

Since its inception, Lucci's has been dedicated to serving its customers well. John and Assunta Lucci emigrated from Italy in the 1920's.

They established a small store in Stoneham, Massachusetts. Working with them, their son John began to learn the business.

During the Korean War John signed up with the U.S. Army. When he returned home, he decided he wanted to open his own business.

His father helped him find a location in Wilmington, Massachusetts. He found a store owned by Emma Symes, located on what was then known as Perry's Corner. By that time, John had married Marjorie Landry. John and Midge cleaned up the store, put up some shelves, and on January 9, 1956, they opened Lucci's Supermarket.

John and Susan Lucci stand inside Lucci's Supermarket in Wilmington alongside a cooler housing specialty dinners made by Susan's Kitchen. The ready-made meals, cooked on-site by Lucci, have become very popular with customers.

The original store was rather small; they only stayed in it for two years. Midge and John built a new store (where Picture Works presently stands). John Sr., Midge, and Assunta worked in this second store. They stayed in this location for approximately ten years. Following, they built in Lucci's present location.

John Lucci Jr. grew up in the supermarket business. He had the privilege of working with his grandmother Assunta (who worked well into her eighties), and his parents. He started helping out at age 10 and has worked full time at Lucci's Supermarket since his 1980 graduation from Bentley College. John currently manages Lucci's. His wife, Susan (of Susan's Kitchen), works in the store as well. John's children Adriana and John maintain the company website.

about being a children's librarian. There is nothing like the hum of a busy Children's Room. On any given day you will see grandparents reading to their grandchildren, families picking out movies that they are going to watch later as a family, kids thrilled to get their hands on the latest book in their favorite series, children squealing with excitement when they discover that the library offers videogames to borrow, babies looking at books, children collaborating to put on impromptu puppet shows, the creativity of children working on a craft - just to name a few of the many activities going on daily at the library. It's a privilege to have the opportunity to plan services and programs for children and their families, that educate, entertain, and/or enrich them, as well as select books, movies, music, and videogames that they will enjoy.

WHEN YOUR EMPLOYEES TRAVEL

When your employees travel on business for you, and you reimburse their expenses, how does this affect their taxes? The IRS has set up rates that employers can use for lodging, meals and incidental expenses, and any reimbursements that fall within those limits are generally assumed to be substantiated and not taxable to the employees or subject to withholding.

The rates cover the period from October 1 or last year though this September 30. The IRS separates them into "high-cost" and "low-cost" areas and has prepared a full list of each.

Starting last October, the "high" cost area rate is $233 per day; the "low" rate is $160 a day.

Self-employed individuals cannot use these reimbursement rates to deduct their own travel costs, but they can deduct the IRS standard meal allowance and incidental expenses per diem rate for any particular area.

We're tops in handling the tax needs of small business. You can depend on our know-how at Public Library and a Children's Librarian at the Acton Memorial Library.

What appealed to you about the position in Wilmington?

I was attracted to the Wilmington library because the mission, goals and objectives of the library match my own so much. The library's emphasis on community is exactly what I believe is important for libraries to do. The library is known for being innovative and creative, something that I was definitely looking for in a new position. I was also drawn to the tradition of excellent children's services established by my predecessor, Susan MacDonald, and by the terrific staff in the Children's Room who have many years of experience.

Are there any upcoming plans or programs that you would like to mention/highlight?

The summer reading program is winding down after a summer filled with wonderful programs and lots of reading by Wilmington children. We're gearing up for a fabulous fall. Story Time registration begins on August 22 for babies, toddlers and preschoolers. We'll be continuing our popular programs, including Lego Building, Story/Craft programs, Chess, Book Discussion groups, movies, and fun special programs as well as adding monthly family programs on Saturday mornings.

What would you like the readers of the Town Crier to know about you?

I would like them to know how happy I am to be here. I am very excited to meet the residents of Wilmington. I invite children, their parents, grandparents and caregivers to come into the library and introduce themselves and share with me what they love about the library, as well as tell me what other types of programs and services they would like to see offered by the Children's Room. They can also email their comments and suggestions to me at braab@mvlc.org things up a bit with Rusty, maybe removing the distributor rotor from the Caddy while Rusty was occupied. Another time, Dick was on the roof of the depot with a hose, waiting for Rusty to come out. Of course, Rusty would call him lots of unprintable names and chase him a bit. It was great fun.

When he reached 74, Rusty grew tired of being a slave to the telephone. He sold the taxi business to Tony Antonowich and retired. It was time to go fishing.

Fishing had been Rusty's favorite activity all his life. He knew all the best fishing spots in the area.

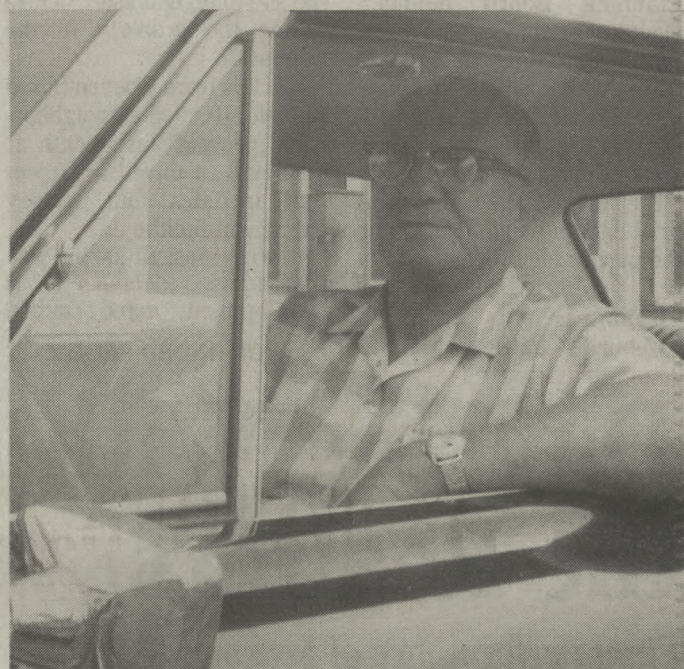

Rusty and his brother Dave used to have great success fishing for eels in Lubbers Brook. They would make a knot of worms, with no hook.

As one of them hauled in the eel, the other would grab it and kill it. Then they would take home a bucket of eels and their mother would fry them up.

In 1904, when he was 11, he and Dave caught a large bass in Silver Lake. They walked down Grove Avenue with the fish. Neither of them had seen a bass before, and they had no idea what it was. A man at Howe's Store asked them about it. They went inside and weighed the fish. It weighed two pounds. The man offered them a quarter, and the boys sold him the fish.

When they went home, they showed the money to their father, who said he would rather have had the fish.

Rusty never caught another bass in Silver Lake.

Rusty Brabant decided it was time to go fishing. (note: this picture is not of the fabled Cadillac) plans to go to the city's Zoning Board of Appeals for "modifications" to the comprehensive permit, but the fill removal would be executed "prior to exercising any rights under 40B."

Engineer Carlton Quinn of Woburn's Allen & Major firm noted the elevation is 120 feet above Main Street, and access to the site would be from a 28-foot wide gravel road that winds around the property while the site work was being done. He said there would be "no downstream impact to the rate or volume" of water runoff from the fill removal process due to modifications like retention ponds.

John Durkin, of Onyx Corp. in Acton, which is executing the fill removal process, said there will be a staging area for trucks about 60 feet off Main Street, limiting the impact of the operation on traffic.

The fill removal operation will last between 8-12 months and involve blasting and crushing. The materials will be then loaded and trucked off site.

"My main concern is you're going to be crushing stone 16 hours, six days a week," said Edmonds.

Durkin noted his company has a reputation to uphold, and the impact on the community is always a concern.

"We don't want every neighbor on the road to hate us," he said. "We're on top of our stuff, and we care."

Planning Board member Michael Ventresca worried that the curb cut may not be wide enough to accommodate turning trucks, especially on a winding section of Main Street.

"That's going to be quite a few trucks," Planning Board member James Callahan added. "Where are they going to be hauling to?"

Durkin said there are "a couple of people interested," but he did not specify. He estimated there would be approximately 21 loads a day trucked off-site, or about four an hour, which he termed "not excessive."

In response to another question from Callahan, Durkin said dust would be mitigated by either water culled from the retention ponds or with calcium chloride. Durkin had no answer for Callahan to another question about mosquitoes breeding in the areas of standing water, however.

"I can look into a solution for that," he said.

Edmonds noted he was still not convinced by the engineer's claims about containment of the drainage.

"You keep saying 'should' or 'might' or may," he said. "People live here."

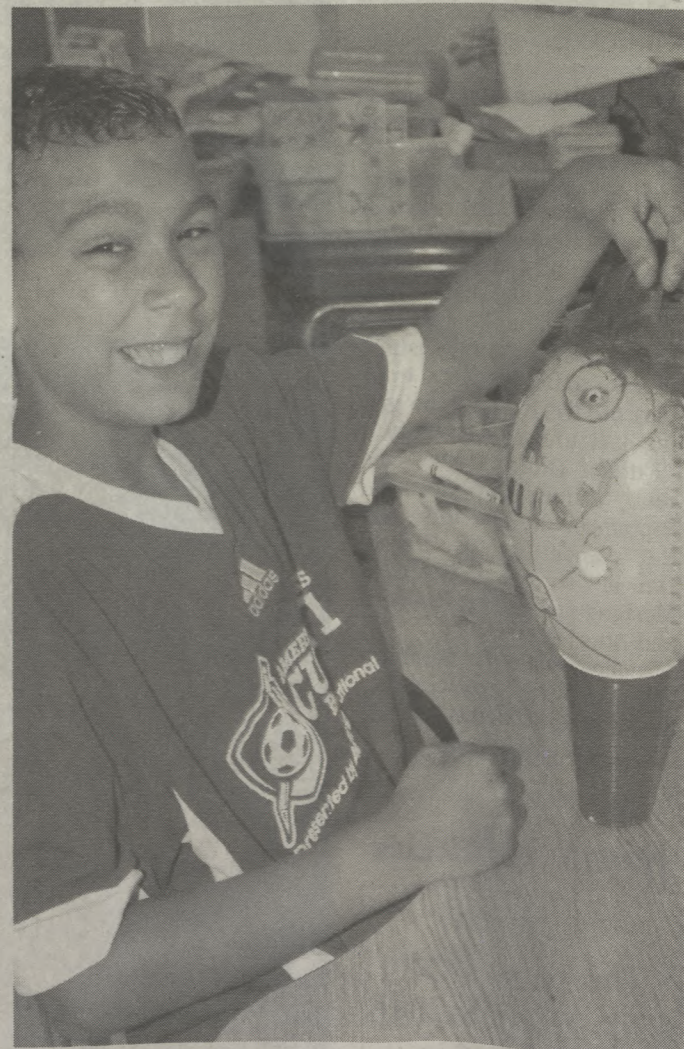

At the neighborhood meeting last month, the developers noted a house at 7 Driftwood Drive will be razed and used as an emergency entrance/exit. About 30 feet of elevation will be taken down, involving eight months of blasting, with one or two blasts per day. Abutters within 250 feet will have their homes inspected prior to blasting.

The plans call for 168 apartments, 108 of which will be 2-bedroom units. There will be a clubhouse and a pool in the complex.

National Grid reminds customers of service call safety precautions

WALTHAM - National Grid is reminding customers that to ensure confidence and security during service calls, all National Grid employees are required to carry company photo identification. Most, but not all, National Grid employees also travel in clearly marked National Grid vehicles when providing service to residences and businesses.

Yesterday, the company received reports that individuals posing as National Grid employees were able to gain entry to and rob a Cumberland, RI customer's home by diverting the customer's attention. National Grid is working closely with the Cumberland police to investigate the incident and has alerted all area police departments about the incident. Similar incidents were reported earlier this month in several Massachusetts communities. Those investigations are continuing.

Customers should always ask to see the National Grid company ID badge of anyone who says they are from National Grid - especially if the customer did not initiate a service call.

If you are in any doubt as to whether an individual is a National Grid employee, tell the person to wait outside and then call National Grid to confirm identification. National Grid electric customers throughout New England should call 1-800-322-3223. National Grid gas customers should call according to geographic area:

In Rhode Island, gas customers should call 800-870-1664 to confirm identification.

In the Greater Boston Area, gas customers should call 1-800-233-5325.

For all other areas of Massachusetts, gas customers should call 1-800-548-

It's important to note that in Massachusetts electricity customers can choose to purchase their energy supply at competitive prices from a variety of suppliers known as Competitive Suppliers or Energy Suppliers. Some suppliers may contact customers through door-to-door marketing. Supplier representatives participating in door-to-door sales activities must not claim to represent National Grid or any other utility.

National Grid does not conduct sales door-to-door, and will never ask for customer account numbers at the home. In addition, third-party supplier representatives must display proper photo ID with their own company logo visible. Do not provide your utility account number or a copy of your utility bill to a supplier representative unless you are interested in and ready to receive an offer. For a complete list of suppliers, visit www.nationalgridus.com.

National Grid is an international energy-delivery company. ### Clean Out Your Purse

Have you seen the fashion bags that women are wearing? The trend is big; an infant or small dog would fit comfortably inside. And I bet if you placed that bag on a scale you would believe likewise. While I admit I have been known to carry a large bag now and again I'm truly hiding a secret - it's all for looks. Even my husband laughs when I carry a large purse because he knows there is practically nothing in it. I typically add a few lipsticks as a feeble justification for the grandiose bag holding only my wallet and cell phone.

But trendy as they may be, heavy purses are culprits of a bigger, more painful problem; problems that can translate into headaches, muscle and spinal pain. Therefore, when first meeting with a new patient I am sure to assess the purse they carry. Some of these bags that have been weighed come in upwards of six pounds.

While the bags may look pretty, they can damage spinal joints and the surrounding structures. The mechanism of damage is typically in the tractioning down of the shoulder carrying the bag. The shoulder muscles will tighten to raise the shoulder in an effort to maintain the bag from slipping off the shoulder, the neck muscles will consequently tighten to keep itself from tilting and the opposing shoulder muscles will also become taut over time in an effort to rebalance. This process creates a shift into abnormal postures.

Typically the short-term affects are typically minimal - tense muscles creating the points that you constantly want to massage out. With persistent attempts to rebalance itself, muscles will continually be stressed and pull the connecting joints out of alignment. Over time the chronic tightening of muscles and postural imbalances will negatively affect spinal joint function. Growing research indicates that postural imbalances now greatly increase the likelihood of degenerative spinal joints later.

Possible further complications of heavy straps include the impingement of the delicate structures underlying the area that traverse from the neck into the arm: including blood vessels and nerves. Impingement of these structures can result in pain, numbness or tingling in the arm and/or hands.

Here is my chiropractic and womanly advice. If you like the look of the larger bags but want to stay health-conscious, wear it as a trendy façade; but use only what you need. Change sides in order to maintain balance. Switch to a stylish backpack for heavier loads placed evenly across the back, using both straps. If you have been carrying a heavy purse for years and suffer from any of the problems I described above, be sure to have your spine and muscle health checked. Not only will it help you feel better now but will decrease the likelihood of greater problems down the road.

Don't make your purse look like your junk drawer at home.

Here's to your health...naturally.

Let's Hear it!! Your Two Cents...

Thumbs up to the production of "Beauty and The Beast" put on by the Children's Theater Workshop of Wilmington. It was directed and produced by Joanie Walsh, Founding Director. This play is definitely not only for "relatives" of the young actors participating, but for anyone interested in an entertaining evening out. The singing and acting was excellent! So, if you are looking a good night of theater, check the upcoming shows of the Children's Theater Workshop at www.ctwkids.org.

Seems as though the ugly fence contest has proceeded to Park Street and Freeport Drive from Concord Street. The Town may have fence ordinances, but unfortunately, it cannot regulate poor taste or class. Find a better way to spend your time and money.

Wilmington awarded grant to combat underage drinking

WILMINGTON - Today the Police Department announced that they will receive $4,928, as one of 38 grants to local police departments from the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security (EOPSS) to combat underage drinking. $280,000 in the grants, funded by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention and awarded on a competitive basis, varied between $5,000 and $15,000 based on the size of the community.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), 33% of 15 to 20 year-olds who were killed in crashes nationwide in 2009 had a blood alcohol content of .01 or higher. Additionally, young drivers tend to engage in other risky driving behaviors while drinking, such as speeding, distracted driving, running red lights, making illegal turns, and not wearing seat belts. In 2009, 70% of the young drivers of passenger vehicles involved in fatal crashes who had been drinking were also unrestrained.

"The men and women of the Wilmington Police Department, in conjunction with their many partners, both local and state, are committed to reducing the under-age use of alcohol with a multi prong approach. To augment our education and treatment initiatives, officers will focus on enforcement with this grant opportunity. Our goal in the use of this grant is to direct patrols in the area of unlawful procurement, purchase and sale of alcohol relative to our youth," explained Chief Michael Begonis.

The grants will fund a variety of law enforcement activities including: stings/compliance checks in bars, restaurants and retail locations; reverse stings; "shoulder tap" and "Cops in Shops" programs; and party patrols. Through a combination of these techniques, departments will be able to analyze and crack down on both minors who seek to circumvent the law and those people and businesses that allow them to.

Chief Begonis stated, "Each year our community is touched by one or more tragedies related to underage alcohol consumption. Teens and their parents need to be aware of the dangers and sometimes deadly consequences of underage alcohol consumption. Social host violations continue to surface in the media, typically after a tragic event. Parents who host parties and provide alcohol to minors must realize this is not only illegal but extremely dangerous. The liabilities associated with this type of procurement are enormous."

Any loss or injury on our roadways is one too many. The Wilmington Police Department, in partnership with EOPSS, recognizes traffic crashes are preventable, and is committed to using this grant to reduce the number of motor vehicle-related fatalities and injuries in the Town of Wilmington.

Rodman & Rodman CPAs outline 2011 sales tax holiday for consumers and retailers

NEWTON - Massachusetts residents will be able to enjoy a Sales Tax Holiday weekend on August 13 and 14.

"The Commonwealth of Massachusetts will not be collecting the 6.25 percent sales tax on tangible purchases of $2,500 or less that are for personal use," explains Thomas Astore, Tax Director at Rodman & Rodman, P.C. "Business purchases and purchases made by corporations remain taxable. All Massachusetts businesses normally open during this weekend and selling taxable items of tangible personal property are required to participate in this sales tax holiday."

Rodman & Rodman, P.C., is a CPA firm offering specializing in tax expertise and business strategy for small and medium sized companies throughout New England and beyond.

According to Rodman, consumers will be able to enjoy tax savings in compliance with the following rules that will be in effect for the weekend:

- Business purchases are excluded, which also means any purchase made with a business check or business credit card.
- All services are excluded. Only tangible purchases are eligible. Airline tickets and sporting events are considered services.
- Motor vehicles (which include ATVs and small motorcycles), motorized boats, telecommunications services (including prepaid calling arrangements and cards), gas, steam, electricity, tobacco products and meals are excluded from the sales tax holiday. But, telecommunications equipment (cell phones and related items for personal use) are eligible.

- Any single item with a price that is in excess of $2,500 is excluded. If the single item's price exceeds $2,500, it will be taxed in full. For example a $3,000 plasma TV will be taxed on the entire $3,000 sale price.
- When more than one item is purchased at the same time, and each item has a price of $2,500 or less, then all of the items may be rung up on one receipt and all the items are tax-free.

- There is no sales tax on clothing unless the sale price exceeds $175. For an article of clothing exceeding this amount, the $175 will be deducted from the price and the remaining amount will be taxed.
- If a store coupon or discount provided by a retailer or manufacturer reduces the sales price of the item, the discounted sales price determines whether the sales price is within the sales tax holiday price threshold of $2,500 or less.

- Prior sales and lay-a-ways do not qualify for the tax-free status under any circumstances.
- Special order items such as furniture are eligible so long as they are ordered and paid in full on the sales tax holiday weekend, and the cost of each item is $2,500 or less, even if delivery is made at a later date.
- Internet purchases are exempt from sales tax as long as they do not exceed $2,500 (and meet other criteria) and are made and paid for on August 13th or 14th, Eastern Standard Time.

The audience will be treated to an audiovisual presentation that features nearly 250 slides, many of which have appeared in the New York Times, and other national publications including Money, Tour and Resorts, and Americana magazines.

Harry Potter Party for Teens & Tweens: On Friday, August 19 at 2:00 p.m., teens and tweens are invited to the library's Harry Potter Party, full of Harry Potter trivia, games, crafts, prizes, and snacks! Exploring Massachusetts: On Wednesday, August 31 at 6:00 p.m., join Peter and Debbie Lincoln - retired educators - to learn about their fascinating journey to each of the 351 cities and towns in Massachusetts. Entitled "From Purgatory to Podunk," their lively, interactive presentation is a historical, geographical tour, filled with trivia and fun facts. The audience is in store for a lively evening featuring the variety, richness, and beauty of Massachusetts.

Must-See Movie Night: On Tuesday, August 30 at 5:45 p.m., attend a screening of one of Hollywood's latest DVD releases - "The Conspirator" (PG-13, 123 minutes). Starring James McAvoy, Robin Wright, Justin Long, Evan Rachel Wood, and Tom Wilkinson, this historical drama is based on Kate Clifford Larson's book "The Assassin's Accomplice: Mary Surratt and the Plot to Kill Abraham Lincoln." In the wake of Abraham Lincoln's assassination, seven men and one woman are arrested and charged with conspiring to kill the President, Vice President, and Secretary of State. The lone woman charged, Mary Surratt, owns a boarding house where John Wilkes Booth and others met and planned the simultaneous attacks. Against the ominous backdrop of post-Civil War Washington, newly-minted lawyer Frederick Aiken, a 28-year-old Union war hero, reluctantly agrees to defend Surratt before a military tribunal. Free popcorn and lemonade will be served. Co-sponsored by the Tewksbury Lions Club.

Registration is strongly recommended for library events as it aids presenters and staff with planning. (No registration needed for Movie Nights.) Register by stopping by the Reference Desk, calling 978-640-4490 ext. 207, or by visiting the library's online calendar of events (<http://www.tewksburypl.org>). Refreshments will be provided. Door prizes will be awarded. Events are FREE thanks to the generosity of the Friends of the Tewksbury Public Library. The Friends of the Tewksbury Public Library's Friendly Little Bookshop will be open prior to all Wednesday night events.

Citywide Festival of Textile Arts Lowell Quilt Festival—August 11-13, 2011

LOWELL - A recent study of hobbies in America cited golf as #1 in terms of annual per capita expenditure—no great surprise there. What may surprise some is what comes in at #2: the practice of a functional art form that our founding mothers would have known.

We're talking about quilting, and from August 11-13, the City of Lowell, Massachusetts celebrates this very American tradition in all its guises. These are not your grandma's quilts, however. What started out as way to make warm coverlets out of scrap fabrics arranged in a pleasing pattern has evolved into high art.

Galleries and museums around Lowell will feature exhibits of the textile arts during the annual Lowell Quilt Festival. Visitors will ride a free city-sponsored shuttle bus connecting all of these venues as well as the Boot Mills Museum, the Lowell Memorial Auditorium (site of the IMAGES quilt show), the National Park Visitor Center and area parking garages. On Gallery Night (Friday, August 12th), all venues except the National Park sites will offer free admission and refreshments.

The IMAGES juried quilt show at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium will feature stunning quilt entries from one end of the country to the other, as well as special exhibits and speakers.

The New England Quilt

Museum, meantime, offers Maine's Quilt Heritage, antique quilts dating from as early as 1804. The Pine Tree State will also be honored at Museum's Gallery Night event, when lobster sliders will be available. In addition to the Maine exhibit, the NEQM is pleased to present Stars!, the only eastern stop for a national touring exhibit of modern pieces inspired by star-themed antique quilts.

The American Textile History Museum features fashions from the 1930s, plus a special exhibit of Vietnamese hammock graffiti art. At the Whistler House Museum, visitors will enjoy stunning art quilts as well as a Friday afternoon tea and Saturday artist reception. The Brush Gallery offers sea-themed art quilts, a trunk show of Japanese silks, plus, on Saturday, a tented exhibit and sale of needlecrafts and fiber arts.

A full schedule of events for the three-day Lowell Quilt Festival is at www.lowellquilt-festival.org.

Lisa Desberg, Wilmington High School teacher, participates in the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum's Belfer Conference

For English language arts educators

WASHINGTON, DC - Lisa Desberg of Haverhill, an English teacher at Wilmington High School, attended the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum's fifteenth annual Arthur and Rochelle Belfer National Conference for Educators: English Language Arts from July 10-12. Ms. Desberg was one of 94 secondary English or language arts educators from around the country who participated in the three-day workshop.

The conference is part of the Museum's ongoing effort to equip educators nationwide with the knowledge and skills to effectively bring Holocaust education into their classrooms. Every year, the Museum trains hundreds of teachers through training programs held in Washington, D.C. and around the country.

"The legacy of the Holocaust remains very much a part of our world," says Pete Fredlake, Director of Museum National Outreach for Teacher Initiatives. "Teaching students the causes of and the responses to the Holocaust will build a foundation for understanding this history and its continuing relevance to us in the 21st century which is why it is important to build the foundation by training teachers."

Conference participants work with Museum educators and Holocaust scholars to enhance both their historical knowledge of the Holocaust and explore successful practices that engage students in this history.

The Museum promotes the responsible teaching of the Holocaust by providing training and support materials to secondary educators of all levels of experience nationwide. Teachers with five or more years experience in Holocaust education may participate in the Belfer Next Step Conference held every two years, or the intensive, five-day Museum Teacher Fellowship program held each summer. In addition, the Museum's Regional Education Corps is a dedicated and growing team of 35 advanced Holocaust educators who provide other teachers around the country with the tools to teach the Holocaust effectively.

The Museum's website, www.ushmm.org, provides resources at no cost to educators, including a range of online training modules, exemplary lesson plans, and extensive historical information about the Holocaust.

The Arthur and Rochelle Belfer National Conference for Educators is funded in part by the Belfer Foundation of New York City. For more information about the conference or to arrange an interview with one of this year's participants or organizers, please contact Jackie Berkowitz in the Museum's Media Relations Department at (202) 488-2637 or jberkowitz@ushmm.org.

A living memorial to the Holocaust, the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum inspires citizens and leaders to confront hatred, prevent genocide and promote human dignity. Federal support guarantees the Museum's permanent place on the National Mall, and its far-reaching educational programs and global impact are made possible by the generosity of donors nationwide. For more information, visit www.ushmm.org.

Sisters score big at Elite Hockey tourney

By CHRIS RICCIARDI
Sports Correspondent

HAVERHILL, MA— Most hockey fans usually think of shooting finesse or skating speed as the basis of a great hockey player. For Wilmington residents Sara and Michelle Alonardo, though, both of their games simply revolve around the basics.

The sisters recently participated in the Hockey Night in Boston Tournament, a showcase that features some of the best players across the nation. Sara Alonardo is a senior and Michelle is a sophomore at Governor Dummer Academy in Byfield. The sisters competed as members of the Mass Preps team in the H.N.I.B. Women's Showcase, which was held from Aug. 7 through Aug. 10 in Haverhill.

"I think they're fundamentals are an incredible strength," coach Jenelle Ries said. "That sounds like a simple thing, but there are many players out there who don't have the fundamentals down. They don't have that sense for the game. These are two girls, with both their fundamentals and work ethic, who are very good players. I've known them for awhile by coaching against them; I coach at a rival school. While watching them more closely, they are very complete players. They're not the type of players who are flashy. That's a good thing."

Fundamentals such as strong skating, stickhandling, positional hockey and shooting go along way in the game of hockey.

"We both agree with our coach," Michelle Alonardo said. "A big part of the game is having your fundamentals down. Almost everyday, we're working on something in our backyard, whether it's stickhandling or shooting pucks."

The sisters come from a very athletic family, including their father who also enjoyed the game of hockey. Both Sara and Michelle started out playing on boys' hockey teams, but once they reached middle school, they changed over to the girls' leagues. Both girls are members of the Governor Dummer team and this past season they played together frequently, Michelle as a forward and Sara as a defenseman.

"A lot of the time it works out because we usually know where each other is on the ice, so it's easy to connect on passes and create opportunities," Sara said. "During the regular season for school, we play on the same line, so we have some experience playing alongside with each other going into the tournament. Sometimes it can be frustrating when things don't click for us, but we're always pushing each other to become better players."

Ries said that along with their excellence in the fundamentals, the girls' work ethic has paid off. In a recent game against a team from Minnesota, Michelle scored a goal by skating hard to the net and being in the right spot. Ries said that was an example of how they think as players.

"They have very good hockey sense," Ries said. "They always seem to be in the right place at the right time. Michelle scored a goal by going hard to the net, which you try to teach your kids as a hockey coach. She couldn't have done that anymore perfectly. That's the kind of players you have. They have their sticks on the ice when they're supposed to be on the ice, they're taking away passing lanes, and they're doing all of the little things right. It's really important."

In the game against Minnesota, the Mass Preps' team gave up an early lead but were able to make up the difference leading into the final period, as the game was tied at 2-2. Near the end of the game, Minnesota outskated their rivals and scored the go-ahead goal. They wound up winning the game, 3-2.

"They worked really hard against a great Minnesota team," Ries said. "My team skated hard, worked hard, and competed to the very end. It looked like we ran out of gas, and Minnesota simply wore us down. Minnesota is probably going to be one of the top teams in the tournament, and we're hoping to also be a top team."

Michelle and Sara Alonardo have been major components in the team's run during the HNIB tournament, and it looks like their contributions won't end after this week. Michelle is entering her sophomore year of high school hockey and appears she'll have a major role with her Governor Dummer team. This is the last year of high school hockey for Sara, who is now looking towards the collegiate game. Both girls said that they are interested in playing in college, and Ries said that they have the opportunity to find success at that level.

"If that's their goal, they could be great college players," Ries said. "Both of the girls are incredibly hard workers. If they keep working at it, they have a lot of potential."

O'Connell shines at HNIB Summer Showcase

By CHRIS RICCIARDI
Sports Correspondent

HAVERHILL, MA— Hockey isn't usually on the mind of most sports fans during the summer months. However, for Arlington Catholic junior and Wilmington resident Brendan O'Connell, hockey was likely the only thing on his mind.

O'Connell, a forward, took part in the Hockey Night in Boston Summer Showcase last week. The 37-year-old tournament includes some of the best junior players in hockey throughout the nation. O'Connell was a member of the Suburban team in the Massachusetts division alongside Arlington Catholic teammate Marc Vercellini.

The Suburban team was coached by Gary Bishop, the head coach at Bishop Guertin High School in New Hampshire. Bishop said that O'Connell first stood out to him during the tryout camp held for the showcase.

"He was one of the kids we picked to come onto our team," Bishop said. "In tryout camp, there are (a lot of) kids who are trying out to get on these teams. In the all-star game for tryouts, he scored two goals along with an assist. When it came to the draft, we thought Brendan would be a great fit for our team. He had a great tournament for us."

O'Connell said that heading into the tryouts, he just wanted to make the team.

"I tried to stand out," O'Connell said. "There were kids from all over Massachusetts and New England. My coach said that I was a good skater and a good fit (for his team)."

One of O'Connell's greatest traits was his lack of selfishness, according to Bishop. Throughout the tournament, O'Connell sought to set up his teammates rather than shoot the puck himself.

"He's very smart and makes good passes," Bishop said. "Brendan would dish it out to others before caring for himself. He shines when he's playing well. He's a kid that plays both ends of the rink. He is very skilled with the puck."

O'Connell said the entire tournament was a tremendous experience.

"I felt that my game was suited for the tournament because of my speed," O'Connell said. "It was a great experience and a fun time. The fact that I played with kids from across the country was great."

In their first game of the tournament, Suburban was able to edge the Massachusetts/New England Sophomore team by a 2-1 margin. On Monday afternoon, Suburban fell to the South Shore/Rhode Island team, 6-2. Later that day, point," Bishop said. "We kept the pressure on. Near the end of the game, we had a shot that hit the post, so it was just bad luck."

Bishop said that with a little time in the weight room, O'Connell can make it in both high school hockey and possibly in college.

Suburban was able to defeat the North Shore by a 4-2 score. Bishop said the victory against North Shore was his team's best game.

"It was our best game because it was a turning point," Bishop said. "We played really well and it was a turning point."

With a 3-3-1 record in showcase play, Suburban was able to qualify for the playoffs. Unfortunately, their first opponent was One Hockey White, one of the elite teams in the tournament. One Hockey White, who eventually went on to win the playoffs, features players from places such as Quebec, Texas, and Missouri. Suburban couldn't pull the upset, losing by a 4-2 margin against their opponents. O'Connell played well, but the team still lost.

"I think we won some games we shouldn't have, and we lost some games that we should have won up to that

"It takes hard work to get to this level," Bishop said. "Last year, he was a sophomore on a senior team, so I think he didn't get much playing time. Next year, I think he'll be on the top two lines for Arlington Catholic. I think he'll step up because of his puck-handling skills and the fact that he's willing to do the little things."

O'Connell said that he is considering transferring to a prep school at some point in the future so he could get more exposure.

"I'm not the biggest guy, but I can skate with anybody else," O'Connell said. "Strength training and conditioning is the biggest thing for me. Endurance is also big so I can (skate) at a faster pace for a longer time. I'd love to play college hockey. I want to use my skills to get to a good college, and college hockey would just be icing on the cake."

Ungvarsky takes women's championship

Wilmington resident Aubrey Ungvarsky captured the Billerica Country Club women's championship title over a four-day competition held recently. Ungvarsky, a sophomore at the University of Hartford and former WHS Golf stand-out, shot 74-75-76-69 for a total score of 294 to take her first title and defeating Wilmington resident Lesley Velardo, who had previously won the tournament several times. A total of 15 women participated in the tournament.

Pan Mass Challenge

Despite the pain, Haggerty completes long mission

By LAUREN SPENCER
Sports Correspondent

Ted Haggerty may have been just another Pan-Mass Challenge cyclist, among thousands of others, pushing through some pain and discomfort, or uttering a few complaints around mile 150 this past weekend. But as those thousands of others in the annual bike ride towards a cure for cancer caused him to realize how fortunate he was, the Wilmington resident doesn't plan to stop riding anytime soon.

For the second year in a row, Haggerty rode 192 miles from Sturbridge to Provincetown over the course of two days in the annual Pan-Massachusetts Challenge. Each year, the PMC event raises money for the Dana Farber Cancer Institute through their charity, the Jimmy Fund, in hopes of one day finding a cure for cancer.

Haggerty lost his father to cancer about a decade ago, so last year he decided to challenge himself with the 192-mile bike-riding quest to honor his dad and the life he lived. It wasn't until the actual ride when thousands of fellow riders gave Haggerty even more reasons to keep riding.

"Originally it was really just a way to honor my father but now that I have a kid and I see other families that are involved in the race with sick kids, it makes me feel more like I really need to keep doing it," Haggerty said. "My dad got me on, but now I'm doing it for those other reasons and so I can be around longer for my daughter."

Haggerty lives in Wilmington with his 10-month old daughter, Avery, and his wife, Lisa, but his support system doesn't stop there. When he decided to ride the PMC for the first time last summer, he convinced two old-time friends to join him. He rides alongside Rob Lubrano, now of Beverly, and D.J. McGarrigle of Woburn. This year, the three became official and created a team name and got riding jerseys as well. They call themselves team "Sempre Avanti".

Participating with close friends proved to be more enjoyable, and it also made the training and fundraising a lot easier. The PMC offers a number of different route options at a variety of different lengths, and the fundraising amount required for each cyclist to raise goes in part with the length of their ride. Sempre Avanti rode the longest offered route and was therefore asked to raise $4,200 each.

Although it did not at first seem like a simple task to accomplish, each team member surpassed his goal, raising well over $12,000 as a team. Through e-mails, events and cook-outs, they exceeded their requirements. One event included a fundraising barbecue, while another was a fundraising night at a bar in Salem, complete with a few local bands.

Training didn't seem like an easy task in the beginning either, but doing it with friends took away a lot of the difficulty. The three would get up early and go out for a seven o'clock bike ride on weekend mornings during the three months leading up to the event. To prepare for the 192 miles they would be riding over the course of two days this past weekend, their training rides were usually longer, and ranged anywhere from 20-to-40 miles long.

But no matter how much training they got in, 192 miles is still a long way to ride. A sore-free weekend was certainly not guaranteed, and no one said those hills would be easy.

"It's difficult," Haggerty laughed. "[There are] a lot of hills and it's painful at times, [but] I see how lucky I have it and I feel like I have to try to help people that don't right now."

But despite any discomfort, Haggerty said the experience is great and the inspiration that comes from some of the cancer-surviving riders is unbelievable.

"[It's] seeing all the survivors that continuously come out and do the ride," he said. "There were a few hundred living proof survivors this year with us and you could see them throughout the ride and you knew who they were, all the thanks that they'd give us and all the other families involved, it's real good."

It's what keeps him coming back year after year.

"During it, it was painful and difficult but right when I got home I was excited for it to be over. I can't wait until next year," Haggerty said.

Two Wilmington teams battle in Jimmy Fund Baseball game

The Wilmington Red Sox and Wilmington Americans participated in a Jimmy Fund 10-year-old Summer Baseball tournament game played this past weekend at Weaver Park in Woburn. The Americans came away with a 13-5 win.

The Red Sox drew first blood in the top of the first inning by putting two runs on the board. Sam DeAngelis started off the game with a single while Ian Proulx and Connor Benoit hit in the inning as well.

The Wilmington Americans got a run back in the bottom half with singles by Riley McCue and Dominic Pedi and a couple of stolen bases in the inning. In the top of the second the Red Sox got another run without the benefit of a hit by displaying good plate discipline forcing two walks in the inning.

The catcher for the Americans, Richie McNamara threw out two runners trying to steal to minimize the damage for the Americans. In the bottom half of the second inning the Americans got a run without the benefit of a hit as well getting two walks and a fielders choice. In the top of the third inning Eric Nesline got things going for the Red Sox by getting a single, but good defensive plays by the Americans infield held the Red Sox scoreless in the third.

The Americans put up four in the bottom of the third. Pete Marino and Richie McNamara set the table by getting on base with a single and a walk respectively with the power hitters due up next. Riley McCue and Dom Pedi hit consecutive hard hit triples to knock in some runs. Carl Beatrice pitched a solid three innings for the Red Sox. Riley McCue threw three-plus innings for the Americans.

In the top of the fourth the Red Sox answered with two runs. Carl Beatrice started things off with an infield hit and what might have been the hit of the day DJ DeRose put a flawless swing on the ball and hit an absolute bomb to left field just missing a home run by a couple of feet. It turned out to be a triple and he went home on a throwing miscue by the Americans. Jason Marquard contributed with a single that inning as well.

In the bottom of the fourth inning the Americans failed to score but Calvin Stafford contributed with a single but good defense by the Red Sox prevented the Americans from scoring. In the top of the fifth inning good pitching and defense held the Red Sox scoreless with Ian Proulx's single the highlight of the inning.

In the bottom of the fifth with the score Americans 6-5, the bats came alive for the Americans. Pete Marino started things off with a walk Richie McNamara blistered a line drive down the third base line for a stand up triple knocking in Marino. He then went home on a passed ball. Riley McCue got on by way of a walk and Dom Pedi knocked him in with a blast for a double.

Singles by Nolan Kane, Keith McDonald. Kyle Kenyon and Calvin Stafford kept the runs coming in for the Americans. In the top of the 6th the Americans shut out the Red Sox to secure the victory. Connor Benoit relieved Carl Beatrice for the Red Sox and threw two innings of strikes and Dom Pedi relieved Riley McCue for two-plus and pitched well getting the save.

Under 18 softball team comes away with a big victory

The U18 Wilmington softball team put together a solid team effort against Lunenburg last week and came away with a 8-4 victory at the West Field.

A six-run second inning was the difference maker in this game. Alliy Gemellaro started off the inning when she reached after being hit by a pitch. A Megan Howland single and a Casey MacDonald walk loaded the bases. Kelsey Mangan drove home Gemellaro with a single, her first of two hits on the night, and a single by Danielle Reynolds plated MacDonald. Kennedy Harper picked up an RBI when she received a bases loaded walk.

With two outs, Katherine McKenna tripled to deep left-center field and cleared the bases to make the score 6-3. Lunenburg got a runner on with one out in the top of the third. The next batter grounded to Jackie Kennedy at second base. Kennedy tagged the runner and then threw to Lauren McKenna at first base to complete the double play and end the inning.

Wilmington scored again in the fourth inning. With Reynolds on base, Kennedy singled to left driving her home. In the fifth inning, the Wildcats got their sixth and final run. Gemellaro walked and then advanced to third base on two wild pitches. MacDonald then bunted to sacrifice Gemellaro home.

Megan Howland had a strong game on the mound for Wilmington. She scattered eight hits but gave up only one walk and struck out five while allowing only one earned run. She recorded a perfect inning in the fourth and with a runner on in the seventh, struck out two of the last three Lunenburg batters.

The win moved Wilmington to 5-4 on the season with games remaining against Tewksbury, Salem, Amesbury, Newton and Lincoln/Sudbury in the final two weeks of the summer season.

Softball All-Star trio

Wilmington's Half Marathon inching closer

Wilmington's 7th Annual half marathon and 5K road race will take place on September 25 at 10 Waltham Street in Wilmington, near WCTV. The event is from 10am-2pm and registration starts at 8 am. However, pre-registration is recommended. All proceeds will benefit scholarships for Wilmington High School students. To register visit RunReg.com or visit wilmingtonbusiness.com to print the registration form and then mail to Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, 226 Lowell Street, Wilmington, MA 01887.

Dan Vassallo, a member of the race committee, who also has a long history of winning road races and marathons, has offered a guideline to those people who plan on running in this year's half marathon in Wilmington:

The rest week is over and time is starting to run out before the Wilmington Half Marathon and 5K, to be held on Sunday, September 25 at 10:10 AM at the WCTV headquarters. For the next three weeks, the plan is to continue increasing mileage until the peak mileage (35, 50, and 65 miles for finishers, performers, and competitors, respectively) is reached on Labor Day Weekend.

This week's element to an effective training plan is the long run. This element is rather self-explanatory: The energy system most important in the half marathon and most road races is the aerobic system. While tempo runs and hill repeats sharpen other systems and build strength, the biggest bang for your buck is to have strong lungs, a strong heart, and endurance so that your legs get the appropriate amount of oxygen and fuel. Long runs also help a runner mentally, as you will finish your long run and find the half-marathon less daunting than the week before. It's also a good way to burn calories and realize you are working harder than your neighbors toward something.

I like to schedule my long runs for Saturday mornings, as they are something that require too much time to do on a work day and as you can get it out of the way before your weekend really starts. Before your long run, make sure you have a good meal the night before and a small first breakfast that morning so that you don't tire due to lack of fuel. Also, make sure you hydrate yourself and make yourself a good second breakfast after you do your long run.

Week Starting August 15th (6 weeks before race):

To Finish: Monday - 4 miles easy; Tuesday - 7 miles (2 easy, 3 tempo, 2 easy); Wednesday - day off; Thursday - 6 miles total: 4 x (3 minutes uphill, return to bottom); Friday - day off; Saturday - 9 miles; Sunday - 4 miles. Total: 30 miles.

To Perform: Monday - 6 miles easy; Tuesday - 7 miles total: 4 x (3 minutes uphill, return to bottom); Wednesday - 4 miles; Thursday, 7 miles (1 easy, 5 tempo, 1 easy); Friday - day off; Saturday - 10 miles; Sunday - 6 miles. Total: 40 miles.

To Compete: Monday - 8 miles: 5 x (3 minutes uphill, return to bottom); Tuesday - 5 miles; Wednesday - 9 miles (2 easy, 6 tempo, 1 easy); Thursday - 7 miles; Friday - day off; Saturday - 14 miles; Sunday - 7 miles easy. Total: 50 miles.

Remember, once again, to pick up the Town Crier for next week's schedule. Stay healthy and stay focused.

Winchester Country Club Salinetti adjusting well as head golf professional

By GORDON VINCENT

WINCHESTER - Replacing a legend can be a difficult task, but Jim Salinetti, the head golf professional at the prestigious Winchester Country Club, is making the transition with ease.

Salinetti, 33, has been alive almost as long as his predecessor, Jim Lane, served as the golf pro at Winchester, for the past 32 years. Salinetti was appointed Lane's successor and took over in January.

"People, especially the members, have been great," said Salinetti. "One of the things I like is it's a great, family-oriented club. And of course it's a terrific golf course. Anyone in the game would appreciate being a pro here."

A native of Western Massachusetts, Salinetti picked up a golf club for the first time when he was 3-years-old.

"My dad started me. I played a lot of sports when I was young, but golf was something I always gravitated towards," said Salinetti. "It's brought me to a lot of great places."

After graduating from Lee High School, his next stop was at the University of Rhode Island, where he helped the Rams' golf program earn recognition on the national level.

"I like to say that I was part of building it at the start, before the program took off," he says, modestly.

In reality, he was one of the golfers who initiated the flight toward the top. As a freshman, he finished second in the Atlantic 10 championships and then won the first of his three Massachusetts Amateur titles in 1997, becoming the youngest champion at the time. He also tied for second in the New England Amateur championship that year.

In 1999, he won his second Mass. Amateur title, the prestigious Ouimet Invitational and was named an All-American Scholar by the Golf Coaches Association of America. He repeated with another Mass. Amateur title in 2000, and added another New England Amateur championship that year.

He impressively made it to the round of 16 at the 2000 U.S. Amateur at the famed Baltusrol Golf Club in New Jersey, where a golfer named Nicklaus won a couple of U.S. Opens, and Phil Mickelson

"RISE OF THE PLANET OF THE APES"

"RISE OF THE PLANET OF THE APES" is the latest installment of the long-running science fiction series and could be the surprise film of the summer. It's a well-crafted thoughtful film that will challenge your mind, while also thrilling your senses with its action and battle scenes.

"RISE OF THE PLANET OF THE APES"
GRADE: ***

After Tim Burton's 2001 remake of the original "Planet of the Apes" turned out to be a flop with both audiences and critics, no one could blame fans of being wary of the latest installment of the long-running science fiction series.

"Rise of the Planet of the Apes" is a prequel to the series, and it could be the surprise of the summer - a well-crafted, thoughtful film that will challenge the mind, while also thrilling the senses with its action and battle scenes.

"Rise" is a great addition to the series' legacy and one of Hollywood's better prequel films to date. The movie actually makes you excited about the prospect of future installments, and that's something that couldn't be said of any of the previous films, including the 1968 original.

Set in present day, before apes have taken the world from the grasp of humanity, the film stars James Franco as Will Rodman, a genetic scientist on the cusp of developing a new drug that could cure Alzheimer's - a disease that his father (John Lithgow) suffers from. But when a successful trial of the drug on a promising test chimp results in an unexpected accident, the project is shut down and the lab's remaining chimpanzees ordered euthanized.

One of the chimps has unknowingly left behind an infant, which Will takes home and raises as his own. Baby Caesar (Andy Serkis) begins showing incredible signs of intelligence, leading Will to believe that he's inherited the benefits of the drug from his mother. But he's still a chimp at heart, and after Caesar attacks a human while trying to protect Will's father, the government locks him up in a primate shelter, only to see Caesar assume leadership over the other locked-up apes and start a revolution.

Most of the audience knows the end result already - that the apes inherit the earth. But the true strength of the film is how well it carries us to that point.

Director Rupert Wyatt expertly shows Caesar's journey from test chimp to ape leader, and this tale is far more interesting than you would expect, thanks to the talent of Andy Serkis (who in the past has played digital characters like Gollum and King Kong).

James Franco may be the star of the movie, but it's Serkis who will receive all the accolades, because his performance as Caesar is so good. It's amazing to see what Serkis can convey to the viewer without saying a word, and though Caesar is completely digital, he's the most identifiable character in the film.

This may be one of the last big films to hit theaters this summer, but it has been worth the wait.

"COWBOYS AND ALIENS"
GRADE: **

Part mystery, part sci-fi, and part Western, 'Cowboys and Aliens' is a film that entertains, even when it doesn't live up to its full potential.

The plot is this: The year is 1875, and the setting is the New Mexico Territory. A stranger (Daniel Craig) with no memory of his past stumbles into the hard desert town of Absolution. What he discovers is that the people of Absolution don't welcome strangers, and nobody makes a move on its streets unless ordered to do so by the iron-fisted Colonel Dolarhyde (Harrison Ford). It's a town that lives in fear.

But Absolution is about to experience fear it can scarcely comprehend as the desolate city is attacked by marauders from the sky. Now, the stranger they rejected is their only hope for salvation. As this gunslinger slowly starts to remember who he is and where he's been, he realizes he holds a secret that could give the town a fighting chance against the alien force.

The effects are solid throughout the film (there's no 3D gimmicks here). The chemistry between Olivia Wilde as the love interest, Craig, and Ford works for the most part, though the film drags a bit when the story resembles a straight-up Western, as opposed to a sci-fi movie. The fresh take of the film is another plus, as the problems of killing massive (and quick) aliens with the light weaponry available in the Old West is featured front and center. There are also a fair amount of strong jokes, adding the unexpected element of comedy to the mix.

Director Jon Favreau's approach to the western setting helps set "Cowboys & Aliens" apart from standard action/adventure fare. Both Craig and Ford display matinee-idol toughness, and their shared screen time is a real plus for the film.

The aliens are depicted as violent parasites, and the visual effects are impressive.

"CAPTAIN AMERICA: THE FIRST AVENGER"
GRADE: ***

Captain America: The First Avenger focuses on the early days of the Marvel Universe, when Steve Rogers (Chris Evans) volunteered to participate in an experimental program that turns him into the Super Soldier known as Captain America. As Captain America, Rogers joins forces with Bucky Barnes (Sebastian Stan) and Peggy Carter (Hayley Atwell) to wage war on the evil HYDRA organization, led by the villainous Red Skull (Hugo Weaving.)

With Captain America, the country has a superhero worth rooting for, and comic book fans have the movie about one of the most iconic characters they have long hoped for.

With its mix of World War II nostalgia, Bam-Kapow comic book values and fight scenes, underdog determination and battle scenes filled with red-white-and-blue pride, "Captain America: The First Avenger" is hands-down the best Marvel superhero picture since the first "Iron Man."

The film mostly exists in the World War II era and veteran director Joe Johnston ("The Rocketeer") takes advantage of the setting to provide some stunning visuals, and strip the story down. Rogers isn't helped in becoming a hero by the latest and greatest technology known to man—he's just a regular guy in

MOST PRODUCTIVE ASSIGNMENT EVER IN BURLINGTON

"When a college professor like Mark Hamlin of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst tells a class one assignment is to look at the past and future growth of the community each student comes from, that assignment may lead to a community getting a much wanted service," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"In Burlington, that much-wanted service took the form of the new Burlington Farmers' Market. The market opened July 15 and is to run every Friday from 3 to 7 p.m. through September 2nd. The market takes place on the lawn of the United Church of Christ Congregational, 6 Lexington St., Burlington. There is parking at the church and down the street at Mt. Hope Christian School.

"Burlington native and Burlington High School graduate Rachel Dutton, 22, is a student at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, class of 2012.

"This past semester, she took a course in environmental design. Professor Hamlin's curriculum for this class included having the students examine their home towns to see how each town was built and try to predict where the town was heading.

"Dutton said, 'Western Massachusetts has a rich food history. I've been learning a lot about agriculture. I really wanted to bring a big picture of agriculture to Burlington.'

"Dutton observed that people in Burlington and surrounding towns were getting excited about farmers markets and fresh food. Rachel started getting a feel for how the community might react to a farmers market by discussing it with her family, and the reaction was most positive.

"She concluded that Burlington was ready for a farmers market.

"As an end-of-the-semester project, Rachel drew up a business plan for a farmers market in Burlington. The plan covered who would be the vendors, the audience or clientele, and to whom she would need to reach out. Rachel also explained part of her vision for the market: she wanted the market to become a community undertaking and she wanted the foods to come from farmers who used sustainable farming methods.

"Dutton's first step in actually starting the market was to talk to other farmers market managers.

"She said Fred Yen of the Winchester Farmers Market and Sarah Berquist of the Amherst Farmers Market each provided a lot of help. She also contacted the Burlington Health Agent Marlene Johnson. 'I learned her expectations of me regarding food safety and what to look for to make sure vendors were keeping to code'...

"Dutton had an assistant market manager the first week, Ben Masi, 24, also a U. Mass graduate who was living in Winchester for the early part of the summer. Dutton's mother and Burlington resident, Catherine Dutton also helped run the market...

"For more information on the Burlington Farmers' Market, check www.burlingtonfarmersmarket.weebly.com. People can also E-mail Rachel Dutton at farmersmarket01803@gmail.com."

ON THE MENU IN WILMINGTON

"A few changes are on the menu for Wilmington school lunches now that state health officials have approved strict new nutrition standards ..., notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

"Most children in Wilmington, however, will not see a big change as the town is well positioned to absorb the new standards.

"We didn't wait for them to tell us any of this. Any food service director paying attention for the last ten years knew this was coming," Mary Palen, Wilmington's Food Service Director, told the Crier.

"Wilmington began making changes to lunch options even prior to Palen's tenure, beginning with lowering the fat content in desserts. Palen has continued the practice, bringing in whole grains and plentiful fruits and vegetables. In fact, students regularly have whole-wheat crust on their pizzas (though not the French bread variety), brown rice, whole-wheat bagels, and even tortillas.

"Massachusetts health officials endorsed new nutrition standards that supporters boast will be among the toughest in the country and will help combat childhood obesity. Specifically, all sugared drinks and foods prepared with artificial sweeteners will be banned from the lunch line, while the quantity of fats and salts allowed in offerings will also be regulated.

"Schools must begin enforcing some of the guidelines as early as August 2012 and the regulations apply to all food sold or provided at school a la carte lines, vending machines, school stores, events, and fundraisers during the school day...."

TO THE LAST DROP IN WOBURN

"Citing issues with traffic parking and the impact on abutters, the Planning Board ... voted to not endorse a proposal to add a drive-through component to the Dunkin' Donuts shop on Main Street across from Ferullo Field in North Woburn," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

The unfavorable recommendation from the Planner did not kill the project, but could have hampered passage by the City Council, which was scheduled to hold a public hearing last Tuesday on the petition from F.J. Catalan Enterprises, Inc.

The proposal included moving the existing Dunkin' Donuts shop to the southern side of a multi-tenant commercial building and adding a drive-through lane in back.

"This doesn't sound like a project that works," said Planning Board member David Edmonds....

Attorney Joseph Tarby representing Catalan Enterprises did note that similar concerns about traffic impacts were raised with two other clients, Wendy's and Dunkin' Donuts on Main Street in the South End, and "in neither instance were the problems as bad as some feared."

Movies

the 1940s who hates getting beat up, and watching it happen to others.

The movie's best special effect doesn't involve explosions - it's the paring down of muscular star Chris Evans to the short, scrawny, pencil-limbed Rogers, a 90-lbs weakling who lacks the strength to defend himself, but not the heart.

The scrawny kid who can nbeat up the bullies is classic Marvel stuff, and Captain America is a classic movie for all.

Life Changing Weight Loss in 4 Months

When I began my weight loss journey at Get In Shape for Women, I was feeling pretty hopeless about ever looking good again. My weight had been slowly creeping up in my late 30's, despite several attempts at different exercise programs. I was tired and more importantly I looked and felt terrible. I lost 3 pounds my very first week and I haven't looked back since. I have lost 45 pounds in 4 months and I'm so happy with the way I look but most importantly with the confidence I've regained.

Athletes & Activities

by Paul Feely

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

What Red Sox player threw a shutout in his last appearance in the major leagues?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Robin Balducci, 20th-year head coach of the University of New Hampshire field hockey team, announced that Christine Albertelli (Ballwin, Mo.) will enroll at the University for the Fall 2011 semester and join the UNH field hockey program for the '11 season.

"We are excited about Christine joining the program," Balducci stated. "She comes from a very good club system. Christine will be athletic and competitive in her play and her versatility position-wise will be an important component to the incoming class."

Albertelli, who lettered in field hockey, swimming & diving and lacrosse at Marquette High School, was named to the 2010 Gladiator NFCA High School All-Academic Squad as well as the 2010 NFCA All-Region Team, All-Metro First Team and All-Conference First Team. She recorded three goals and seven assists that season to lead Marquette H.S. to its first semifinal appearance in the Midwest Tournament. Albertelli was also an All-Conference Second Team honoree in 2009.

Albertelli is Marquette's career leader in games played by a back (71) as well as the single-season record holder for games started (28 in 2010) and the single-game record for minutes played by a field player (74 minutes, 50 seconds). She also played for the Team Gateway St. Louis club team.

Albertelli joins the incoming class of Maegan Grew (Hampton Falls, N.H.), Kellie Joyce (South Pomfret, Vermont) and CARLIE TARBELL (WAKEFIELD, MASS.).

New Hampshire won the 2010 America East regular-season championship with a perfect 5-0 record en route to a 14-7 overall record. The Wildcats climbed as high as No. 19 in the Kookaburra/NFHCA Poll.

•Rob Thompson, head coach of the University of New Hampshire men's soccer team and his staff, recently announced that five student-athletes have committed to attend UNH and play for the Wildcat soccer program in the fall.

"I am excited to add another set of players into the fold next fall," said Thompson. "There is quality, experience, character and depth in this group."

KYLE LEWIS, A GOAL-KEEPER FROM NORTH READING, MASS., will come to UNH this fall after a distinguished career at Malden Catholic High School. The four-year letter winner served as team captain as a senior and was named a Catholic Conference All-Star. Lewis played for the Boston Blast where he won USYSA Massachusetts State Championships in 2007 and 2008. He was also a Region 1 Finalist in 2008, eventually finishing in sixth place at Nationals. Additionally, Lewis played for the MA Olympic Development Program for three years.

"Kyle is big and aggressive coming off his lines and his prowess in the air is a major strength," said Thompson.

•Friends of Reading Recreation is once again proud to sponsor Boating at Spot Pond in Stoneham and Lake Quannapowitt in Wakefield.

Boating passes can be obtained from the Reading Library. Check out the library website: www.readingpl.org and click on museum passes. The Spot Pond Boating Pass is listed here and can be signed out online. The pass is good at Lake Quannapowitt as well as Spot Pond. The two locations have different schedules, please refer to the website below for schedules. You can also sign out the pass by calling the library or stopping at the front desk.

Please note:

The pass is good for kayaks, canoes, row boats and peddle boats. The pass CAN NOT be used for sailing.

The pass is limited to two uses per family over the course of the boating season (May through October). This is to provide maximum usage throughout the town. If you have used your two times, you can however, call the library for same day usage. For example, Joe has used the pass two times and would like to go again. On Tuesday morning he calls the library to see if the pass is being used that day. If not, Joe can use it.

Children under 15 must be supervised by an adult who is on the water with the children. NO EXCEPTIONS!

The Spot Pond Boating season continues until mid-September (see website for dates as they differ for Spot Pond & Lake Quannapowitt.)

Check out the website at www.boatinginboston.com for complete schedule and usage information.

•Need some help with the trivia question? It was also his rookie year.

•Trinity College women's ice hockey senior defender Laura Komarek (Plymouth, Minn.) was honored with the 2011 Susan E. Martin Award winner as the College's top senior female scholar athlete of the year and as one of two 2011 Robert R. Bartlett Award recipients for her combined excellence in athletics and devotion to community and/or campus service.

Komarek, fellow SENIOR DEFENDER MICHELLE BENJAMIN (READING,

MASS.), SENIOR FORWARD SARAH KOHN (WINCHESTER, MASS.), junior defender Julie Pesta (Oxford, Pa.), sophomore defender Britney Ryan (Highlands Ranch, Colo.), and sophomore forward Chelsea Campbell (Surrey, British Columbia) were also selected to the New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC) Winter All-Academic Team. Senior tri-captain defender Alexa Guglielmi (Rocky Hill, Conn.) was chosen to represent Trinity women's ice hockey on the NESCAC Winter All-Sportsmanship Team. In addition, Komarek received an NCAA certificate in June as Trinity's nominee for the NCAA Women of the Year Award. Each student-athlete selected to the NESCAC All-Academic Team must be a junior or a senior starter or key reserve for a varsity team and maintain at least a 3.35 grade-point average. Benjamin and Komarek are each two-time, NESCAC All-Academic selections. Trinity, coached by Andrew McPhee (9th Season), finished with an 18-4-4 record, and advanced to the NESCAC Championship Tournament for the sixth time and the fifth year in a row. The Bantams defeated Hamilton, 3-1, in the NESCAC Quarterfinals but lost, 4-3, in overtime against Amherst at Middlebury in the NESCAC Semifinals.

Benjamin, the College's salutatorian this spring, appeared in 19 games on the Bantam back line in 2010-11. She completed her Bantam career with one goal and 10 assists in 70 games. A graduate of Reading Memorial High School, Benjamin graduated from Trinity in May with a degree in mathematics. She is the daughter of Nancy and Roy Benjamin.

•ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: Brian Denman, October 2, 1982. He was only the fifth pitcher in history to claim the accomplishment, something even rarer than hitting a home run in your last at-bat. And it was the Yankees he beat, 5-0.

•DO YOU KNOW SOMETHING WE DON'T? If you have information about a local athlete that you would like to see appear in this column, please email it to readingchronicle@comcast.net, or mail it to: Paul Feely, Middlesex East Sports, P.O. Box 240, Reading, Ma., 01867, or call Paul at 781-944-2200.

Salinetti

won the PGA Championship in 2005. The 2000 U.S. Amateur is renowned for the epic duel between Jeff Quinney and fellow Massachusetts native James Driscoll, won by Quinney on the 39th hole. After turning professional, Salinetti competed in mini-tours, and on the Canadian Tour, for about seven years.

"I didn't really consider golf as a career until I went to college on a scholarship," said Salinetti. "It's tough for anyone to make a living playing golf. It's such a competitive sport, and there are so many golfers out there with the ability to play at a high level."

After leaving the tour, he worked at the Breakers Club in Palm Beach, Fla. and then at the Wanderers' club in nearby Wellington, as an assistant pro.

"It was a pretty easy transition," said Salinetti.

That led to a return to Rhode Island as the club pro at the Newport Country Club, another historic course that hosted the first U.S. Amateur and the first U.S. Open in 1895.

When word got out that Lane was retiring from Winchester Country Club, Salinetti applied for the job.

"I'm from Massachusetts, and I liked the idea of coming back to the state, and the Boston area in particular," he said. "Once I got the job, (Lane) was a tremendous help. He was given a membership when he retired, so he's been around a lot. He's been able to enjoy his retirement, and we enjoy taking good care of him."

The duties of a club professional are likely more diverse than one would think. There is obviously management of the course, but there's also a merchandising aspect, a management requirement, and the instruction side.

"All-in-all, we have a golf operations staff of about 25 in Winchester, which is a pretty good size," said Salinetti. "The customer service side is big at a club like Winchester. It's a huge part of what we do."

Salinetti has taken up residence in Winchester, and he and his fiancé, who is from Lenox (think of the Western Mass. version of the Woburn/Winchester or the Reading/Stoneham rivalries) would eventually like to settle in the town permanently.

"It's a great community," he said. "We're taking things one at a time right now, but we'd love to stay here and raise a family. The school system is well-regarded, and the people of the town have welcomed us. We're very fortunate."

"I've been able to have so many great experiences through golf, and being here in Winchester is certainly among them," he added. "Golf has done a lot of great things for me, and I'm happy I chose this sport."

And Winchester has already begun to embrace Salinetti as one of its own. It's never easy replacing a legendary figure like Jim Lane, but Jim Salinetti has made the transition seamlessly thus far.

RUN GLOUCESTER 7-MILE ROAD RACE

The Run Gloucester 7-Mile Road Race is set for 8 a.m. on Sunday, August 21 beginning and ending at the famous Fishermen's Memorial statue in Gloucester. The race debuted last year with almost 1,000 runners.

Registration for the race is ongoing at www.rungloucester.com. The race benefits the Gloucester Fishermen Athletic Association's fundraising efforts for the Newell Stadium Renewal project.

Author Jon Marcus, who ran the course last year, referenced the "narrow streets with tightly packed homes of fishing families and breathtaking coastline, including 5 miles of unimpeded ocean views in an article in Runner's world magazine.

There is also a Kid's Fun Run at 9:45 a.m. the morning of the race at the Newell Stadium field at Gloucester High school.

Bib number pick-up for registered runners will be 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, August 20 at the high school, and the morning of the race from 6 - 7:45 a.m. at the high school.

A Road Runners Club of America Expo will take place Saturday, August 20 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on race day from 8 - 11 a.m. by the Newell Stadium.

This Week's Sampler in Wilmington

Whispering Pines is an attractive place to live

Whispering Pines is located in the town of Wilmington, a suburban community with a mix of residential neighborhoods and commercial districts. The town's reputation for being a haven of single-family homes, its close proximity to the Interstate, two commuter train lines to Boston and activities aimed at families, make Wilmington an attractive place to live.

Evidence of the town's community spirit can be found throughout the year at various activities held on the Town Common. The yearly Easter Egg Hunt, Community Craft Fair, Summer Concerts on the Common, week-long Fourth-of-July Festivities and the annual Tree-Lighting Ceremony are just some of the events that provide families and friends an opportunity to come together.

Students to notice changes to the menu

By JAYNE MILLER

WILMINGTON - Students will note a few changes on the menu for Wilmington school lunches when they return at the end of August. State health officials have approved strict new nutrition standards in July, but children in Wilmington will not see a big change - the town is well positioned to absorb the new standards.

"We didn't wait for them to tell us any of this. Any food service director paying attention for the last ten years knew this was coming," said Mary Palen, Wilmington's Food Service Director.

Wilmington began making changes to lunch options even prior to Palen's tenure, beginning with lowering the fat content in desserts. Palen has continued the practice, bringing in whole grains and plentiful fruits and vegetables. In fact, students regularly have whole-wheat crust on their pizzas (though not the French bread variety), brown rice, whole-wheat bagels, and even tortillas.

The new nutrition standards endorsed by Massachusetts health officials will be among the toughest in the country and will help - supporters say - combat childhood obesity. Specifically, all sugared drinks and foods prepared with artificial sweeteners will be banned from the lunch line, while the quantity of fats and salts allowed in offerings will also be regulated.

Schools must begin enforcing some of the guidelines as early as August 2012 and the regulations apply to all food sold or provided at school - a la carte lines, vending machines, school stores, events, and fundraisers during the school day.

Initial efforts at the state level to eliminate flavored milk with the new regulations met with resistance. Parents of children who would prefer no milk, if they cannot have flavored milk, expressed support for keeping the flavored option. Dairy companies are currently working to create a skim milk with a chocolate flavor without the added sugar content.

Palen is not concerned that Wilmington will see a large drop in students wishing to purchase lunches, because the changes have been gradual over the last few years.

"Middle school bagel sales plummeted when we switched to whole grain. We are looking for more appealing whole grains," said Palen. "About 60 percent of students in Wilmington buy lunch. I don't think it will drop off at all, because most of it they've already been getting anyway. It makes good sense.

As long as the taste is there; that's our biggest concern."

The price of lunches is also going up next year, a quarter per meal, in an attempt to meet federal requirements. For Kindergarten through elementary school, lunch will cost $1.80. Lunches at the Middle School and high school cost $2.05.

Return of the Champions celebration at Reading Gymnastics Academy

For the past 29 plus years, Reading Gymnastics Academy has crowned many State, Regional and National Champions. So in honor of their 30th Year - the Championship Banners that hang in the gym will be coming down - and new style ones will take their places. They want to return all those wonderful banners to the recipients who earned them - year after year. They are in the process of locating the many gymnasts and coaches who have been part of their 30 year history, to invite them to the party.

So on September 17th, 2011 - (which is National Gymnastics Day) please join Reading Gymnastics in welcoming the returning champions. From 1:00-2:00 will be a "try the equipment" fun event for children ages 3 and up. A parade and introduction of the Champions will begin around 2:00 and the festivities will conclude with a ribbon cutting ceremony followed by refreshments of Cake, Juice Box with a small goodie bag. Please call ahead of time to reserve your child's fun time - so they will have the proper amount of refreshments.

Reading Gymnastics Academy has been teaching the beautiful Olympic sport of gymnastics to boys and girls starting at age one (or walking) called PlayGym. Than at age 3-5 (Pre-School), Jr. Gymnastics. When the children reach Kindergarten age, they progress to regular gymnastics for girls, and power tumbling for boys. Plus, they have many different team programs for a variety of ages and abilities for both boys and girls.

For those children who will be participating in Champions Day - please have them wear non-binding clothes, i.e. no jeans, but leotards or plain shorts and t-shirt. Do to safety requirements on the equipment - they require that shorts do not contain zippers or buckles, etc.

You can call Reading Gymnastics Academy at 781-944-2277. They are located at 172 Woburn Street, Reading, Ma 01867 - www.readinggymnastics.com. Email: gymnast@readinggymnastics.com. Let them know you want to join the fun. A Special Event Form can be downloaded from their website.

Focus on the future

By ELLEN KNIGHT

WINCHESTER - "This is an aggressive and ambitious plan," Superintendent William McAlduff said when the School Committee was represented with the high school's Focus on the Future report, and then added, "We have an aggressive and ambitious group."

Focus on the Future is "a framework for immediate action and memorandum to the future, a guiding framework to lead us to what WHS seeks to accomplish over the next five years." It is strategic plan intended to enhance educational programming, instructional services, school culture, facilities, and technology planning.

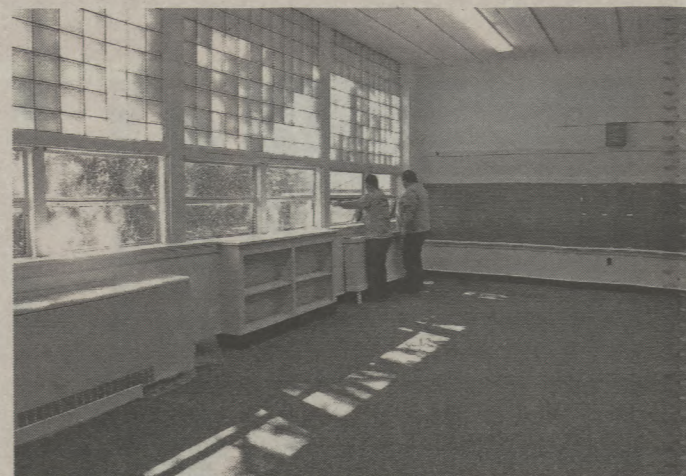

"The overarching goal," McAlduff stated, "was to highlight and make better the very best of WHS and to strengthen those areas where improvement was deemed necessary."

Focus on the Future began in January 2010 when the School Committee authorized a strategic planning consultant to work with staff and volunteers on a strategic planning effort focused on the high school. A working group of parent volunteers, was assembled which coordinated initial planning efforts and supervised the collection and compilation of data. Community forums were held in the spring and fall.

Last fall, a Steering Committee of faculty, citizens, and town officials was formed and charged with shaping the process of developing the plan and overseeing its implementation. A student, faculty, and parent on-line questionnaire was completed by 20 percent of all students, 80 percent of all parents, and every member of the faculty.

The Steering Committee worked with the consultant to discuss all collected information and feedback, reached consensus on the major concerns identified in the data, grouped them into themes, and ultimately defined broad goals and strategies. A subcommittee worked with the principal to finalize the writing of the Action Plan.

Principal Tom Gwin said he was "extremely excited" to present the report. It took longer than they originally thought it would, he said, but that made it better.

CREWS HAVE BEEN WORKING TO RENOVATE THE PARKHURST SCHOOL (on the West Side Hill in Winchester) for use while a new Vinson-Owen School is constructed. Here is where one of the classrooms will be located. The new Vinson-Owen School should be ready by September 2013. (Bill Ryerson photo)

As stated in the introduction, the effort was undertaken because "we recognized that in a rapidly changing world, the school needed to change greatly to rise to the challenge of providing top quality education for all of our students and the skills and knowledge to succeed in the new global society. There was a belief that we needed a strategic framework, a new mindset, and a break from current conventions."

The report has two parts, a narrative and an action plan. It is intended that the plan be periodically evaluated and revised.

The plan includes five focus areas:

- Expectations and communications, whose priority initiatives include improved school-wide communication, greater adherence and accountability for all school policies, common academic expectations for like courses and levels of study, timely teacher feedback to students, and raised expectations for C1 and C2 courses.

- School culture, with priority initiatives including a new honor code, revised mission statement and core values, strong strategies for freshmen transition, a formal assessment of guidance services, school-wide unifying strategies, and an expansion of the integration of service learning into the regular curriculum.

- Curriculum, instruction, and assessment, whose priority initiatives include more effective supervision/evaluation of teachers, advancing professional development, maintaining optimal class size/total teacher loads, incorporation of research-based instructional practices for all teachers, implementation of a student academic support center for all students, greater access to extra help from teachers, and greater utilization of technology in daily lessons.

- Technology, with initiatives including developing a three-year technology plan, establishing a plan to share technology-rich lessons, increasing technology integration specialist staffing, and expanding professional development opportunities.

- Facilities, whose goal is to utilize a broad base of representative involvement, develop a comprehensive plan for facility renovation and upgrade, or new construction.

For each focus area, Gwin gave the committee examples of a short-term action step and a long-term step. For example, for School Culture, a short-term step is to draft an honor code, which has already been done. A long-term step is to pursue the establishment of the administrative position of Dean of Student Activities to provide more unified support for all students.

Curriculum action step examples include the short-term step of establishing HS standards for faculty/staff hiring and strengthen supervision and evaluation and the long-term step of embedding common planning time for teachers into the schedule.

The action plan includes not only the recommended steps but also progress benchmarks, action team, and status. For example, the curriculum goal of increasing interdisciplinary learning opportunities has a Sept. 2012 goal for forming a committee to develop a plan and modify the curriculum and a Sept. 2013 due date to pilot the plan. The action team includes the principal, directors, and faculty/staff.

McAlduff said that one of the most important parts regarding implementation of the plan is that on an annual basis the Steering Committee would get back together, review progress, and make adjustments. This provides a mechanism to understand why some steps have not been accomplished.

New Goodyear set to open in fall

By PATRICK BLAIS

WOBURN - The September start of school will yet again usher in a season of change in a district now readying to occupy a brand new Goodyear School, while shuttering one of the city's last five remaining antiquated elementary facilities.

Capping off an aggressive construction schedule, construction manager Gilbane Building Company reached significant completion on the new East Woburn School in July.

The building, which will house all former Goodyear pupils and about 100 former Clapp School students, is currently having the last of its furniture and fixtures installed, while teachers will begin preparing their classrooms in the days ahead.

In Nov. of 2007, the Mass. School Building Authority (MSBA) announced that Woburn was one of 83 educational facilities across the state that may be eligible for state funding for the Goodyear project.

Eventually receiving a guarantee from the MSBA, the City Council appropriated $26.5 million, over half of its reimbursable, for the new school.

Starting in the early summer of 2010, the old Orange Street school was razed, while Goodyear students at the time prepared to attend the Clapp School in the South End during construction of the building.

Now with the East Woburn school's doors set to open in September, the old Goodyear students, as well as around 100 South End pupils, will find a new home in the building.

The Clapp School, which closed its doors last June, will be held by the School Committee as a possible swing-space during future construction projects.

Currently slated for storage purposes, the decision to maintain the building has proven controversial in the neighborhood, with local residents there insisting that they were promised the space would be converted to a recreational use.

O'Connell named North Reading Middle School principal

BY BOB TUROSZ

NORTH READING - Catherine O'Connell, formerly the vice principal at the Parker Middle School in Reading, has been named as the new principal of the North Reading Middle School.

O'Connell replaces John

Faucher, who announced his plans to retire at the end of the 2010-11 school year. He had served as NRMS principal for three years.

North Reading's Superintendent of Schools Kathleen Willis announced Mrs. O'Connell's selection, calling her "a passionate advocate for middle school education."

O'Connell, who lives in North Reading, had held her position at the Parker Middle School since February 2009. Prior to that she held the positions of grade 6 social studies teacher at the Parker Middle School and Social Studies Teacher/Department Chair at Livingston High School in Livingston, Illinois.

She earned her Certificate of Advanced Study in Education from Salem State University and is currently enrolled in a Doctoral program at UMass Lowell with a focus on leadership in schooling.

The new principal began her duties this summer. O'Connell was chosen from a field of 39 candidates. The Middle School Principal Search Committee interviewed six candidates and selected two finalists, the other being Lisa Durkee of Methuen.

Each of the finalists visited the Middle School to meet with faculty and staff, students, administrators and parents. The Search Committee was "very impressed with the leadership experience, knowledge and expertise possessed by each of the candidates," Willis said.

Many of the participants in the search process commented on O'Connell's positive and professional energy and her strong middle school philosophy, Willis said. A Reading educator had noted: "Mrs. O'Connell possesses a strong knowledge of current practices in education and an ability to communicate her ideas to all stakeholders," Willis said.

The Superintendent added that middle school students commented that they believe O'Connell will relate and communicate well with students and listen to their ideas, and they felt she really cares about students, education.

Supt. Willis thanked the members of the Search Committee for their hard work throughout the selection process: Sylvia Weisz, Laura Wall, Maureen Cusolito, Sharon Chercallah, Patricia Bullard, Patrick Daly, Deanna Castro, Marc Gorgenyi and Dan McInnis.

Personnel changes highlight new school year

By PAUL FEELY

READING - When Reading students return to class later this month, they will be greeted with a few changes - most noticeably a Director of Student Services, and higher school lunch prices.

Back in June, Kristin Morello, Reading's School Food Service Director, provided an update on the Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010.

As a result of First Lady Michelle Obama's initiative for the fight against obesity, there are significant changes to the provision and pricing for school lunches. The change resulting from this initiative have been characterized as one of the most significant and wide-ranging changes.

According to Morello, as the law changes there will be impacts at different times. Section 205, "Equity in School Lunch Pricing" Provision went into effect on July 1.

This provision requires the National School Lunch Program to provide the same level of support for lunches served to the students who are not eligible for free or reduced price lunches (i.e. full price paid lunches) as they are for lunches served to students who are eligible for free lunches.

The provision requires the District to compare the average price charged for lunches served to students not eligible for free or reduced lunches to the difference between the higher Federal reimbursement provided for free lunches and the lower Federal reimbursement provided for paid lunches. If the average is paid lunch price is less than the difference, an SFA must either gradually adjust the prices or provide non-Federal funding (i.e. General Fund from the School district) to cover the difference.

In order to close the gap, the recommendation was made to increase the Elementary Lunch to $2.50 and increase the Secondary Lunch to $2.75.

Another provision that went into effect on July 1, 2011 is Section 202: "Fluid Milk Requirements". This provision requires the National School Lunch and Breakfast Programs to provide a variety of fluid milk that is consistent with the most recent Dietary Guide Lines for Americans. The 2010 Dietary Guidelines recommend that persons over two years of age consume fat-free or low-fat (1%) fluid milk. School Districts must offer at least two choices. Plain or flavored low-fat and fat-free milk currently meet this criteria.

Prescription drug abuse on the rise among today's children

Many children experiment with drugs. What many parents and caregivers may be surprised to discover are even stereotypically "good" kids may try drugs, and legal drugs are becoming just as popular as illegal ones among kids looking to experiment.

Statistics indicate that children of all ages are using drugs in increasing amounts. According to DrugFree.org, about 15 percent of 7th graders have experimented with marijuana and 50 percent of students have tried it by the end of high school. Alcohol use often begins around age 11. The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration says that prescription painkillers use has grown to 5 percent of users who enter treatment. In fact, prescription drug use is quickly becoming more popular among kids than other types of mood altering substances.

A time of growth, experimentation and a little more personal freedom, school-aged years are when many youngsters try drugs and alcohol. With the wealth of drug commercials on television, many kids who do not feel comfortable going the illegal drug route turn to prescription drugs they can easily find in their medicine cabinets. Students often mistakenly think that because a doctor prescribes a medication, it is safer than street drugs. This is not the case.

According to the Teen Drug Abuse Web site, 60 percent of teens said that drugs were sold, used or kept at their school. One in five teens has abused a prescription pain medication, prescription stimulant, or tranquilizer. And at least one in 10 teens reports using cough medicine in order to get high. Marijuana still remains the most popular drug of choice among students, but OTC and prescription drugs are gaining ground.

In lieu of "keg" parties and other booze-heavy social events, some students are now hosting "pharm" parties, where a bevy of pharmaceutical drugs are available. Students carry baggies of assorted pills referred to as "trail mix." And searching through medicine cabinets for staples like Vicodin, Xanax, Ambien and other pain/tranquilizer pills is called "pharming." OxyContin and Vicodin are now more popular among teens than cocaine and ecstasy.

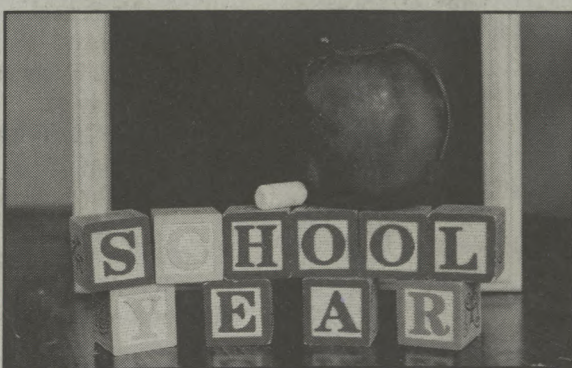

The U.S. Office of National Drug Control Policy says that some pills are more commonly abused than others. These include:

- * opiates, such as codeine, oxycodone and morphine
- * central nervous system (CNS) depressants, such as barbiturates and benzodiazepines
- * stimulants such as dextroamphetamine and methylphenidate

While some children turn to drugs simply for the rush or high, others are self-medicating undiagnosed problems, such as ADD or depression. Prescription drug use can be very easy to mask from adults because many authority figures are focused on street drugs like marijuana or cocaine. Here are some pointers for recognizing the abuse of prescription drugs.

- * Check to see if pills routinely go missing from the medicine cabinet.
- * Pay attention to behavioral changes in students, including lethargy, aggression, sleeping changes, secrecy, etc.
- * Talk to other parents about prescription drug use.
- * Listen for lingo used among children as described above in relation to social events.

Parents can keep prescription drugs under lock and key to help prevent stealing and abuse of pills. They can also limit the number of OTC medications stored at home.

In Burlington Memorial and MSMS projects moving along

BY MARK BIAGIOTTI

BURLINGTON - Over the summer, the Burlington School Department focused efforts on two large projects, one at the Memorial School and the other at the Marshall Simonds Middle School, which sit across from each other on Winn Street.

The cost of the project Marshall Simonds project is $32 million, including $5 million in HVAC work that has already been done, but it has already been confirmed that the Massachusetts School Building Authority will reimburse the town at least 53 percent of the project cost. That amounts to approximately $17 million as it was noted that the Burlington taxpayers will be responsible for the other $15 million.

The project is the school's first major renovation in 50 years and it is expected to extend the useful life of the building by another 30 to 40 years.

The town is expecting construction on the project to be finished in August 2013.

Director of Finance and Operations Craig Robinson informed the School Committee in June that asbestos removal at the middle school started, and it is expected that all the asbestos floor tiles will be removed over the summer.

The new flooring in the corridors and cafeteria will be installed before the first day of school in September.

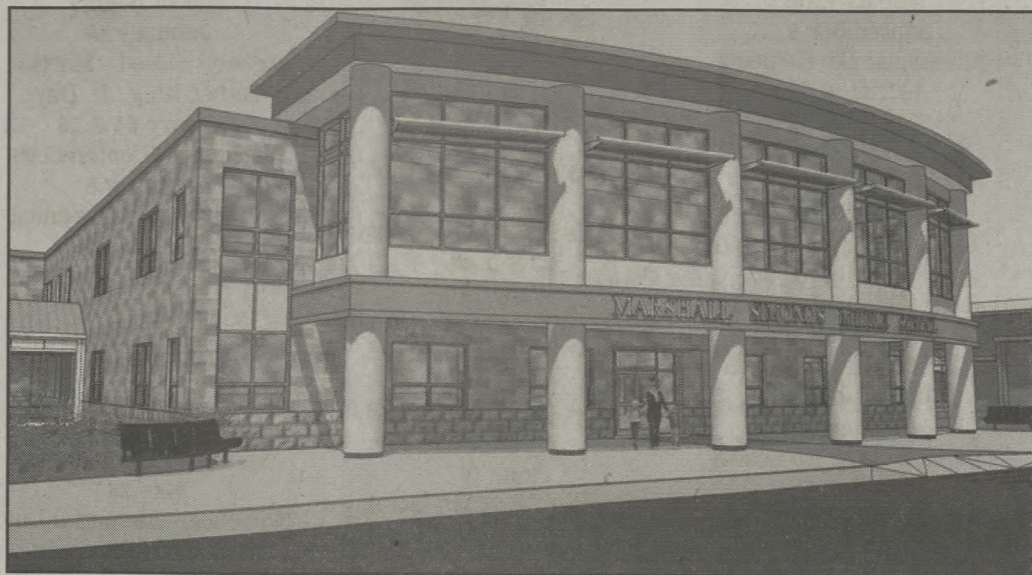

It was also noted the new Memorial School furniture is on the way and will be in place for opening of the new facility in September.

The department confirmed that some of the furniture and equipment from the original Memorial School is being saved, including the portable classroom units, which are being moved to the middle school and will be used as needed.

The department and committee were both pleased with the status of both projects.

The Burlington Office of Veterans Services is looking for contact information on the surviving family members of the 25 men from Burlington who died while serving in the United States Military, so they can be invited to an unveiling of plaques in their loved ones honor.

The original Memorial School had a plaque that was dedicated in May 1955, honoring young men from Burlington who served in the United States Military and made the supreme sacrifice.

THE NEW MARSHALL SIMONDS MIDDLE SCHOOL IN BURLINGTON AS shown by Architectural rendering provided by KBA Architects. The New Memorial Elementary School (below) is an 80,000 square foot school expected to provide a comfortable environment for 500 students.

The original plaque, which will be polished up, and the new one to include additional veterans killed in the line of duty, will both be unveiled inside the new Memorial School in September. The exact date and time has not been finalized as of this writing.

Please contact Bob Hogan at 781-270-1959, to let him know if you are a family member or know of a family member, so that you and they can be invited to join in the ceremony.

The ins and outs of cyberbullying

Cyberbullying occurs when a child is embarrassed, harassed, humiliated, threatened, or tormented by another child using the Internet, mobile phones or another interactive and digital technology.

Just as genuine a concern as bullying, cyberbullying has resulted in children killing others or even committing suicide.

Cyberbullying occurs when minors are on both sides of bullying or if the bullying was at least instigated by a minor against another minor.

Some of the more common means in which a child is victimized by cyberbullying include repeated e-mails or instant messages, posting real or doctored images online, sharing intimate information against a child's will and encouraging other children to share in the bullying.

Breaking into online accounts, such as e-mail or social networking accounts, is also considered cyberbullying. Though some instances of cyberbullying rise to a level where criminal charges are filed, this is rare.

TEAM SPORTS, INCLUDING BASEBALL, can be great extracurricular activities once kids are old enough to understand rules and cope with losing.

How to help kids find the right extracurricular activity

Today's kids are busier than ever before. Be it the increasingly competitive nature of scholastic life or the increase of two-income households where kids need something to do other than come directly home after school, children today are much busier than their school-aged counterparts of yesteryear.

While it can be fun and beneficial for kids to participate in extracurricular activities, finding the right fit isn't as easy as it sounds. When helping kids find an extracurricular activity, it's best to consider a host of factors. Especially keep in mind that not all kids are the same with respect to interests. And what was enjoyed by their parents won't necessarily be enjoyed by them.

Getting Started

The best place to start is to speak to kids about their interests. Just because Dad loved playing football doesn't mean Junior is destined to be a gridiron great. Kids have their own interests, and those interests can be cultivated with the right extracurricular activity. For example, a creative child might enjoy an after-school art class a couple of times per week. Parents should also consider extracurriculars that can help kids grow as people. For instance, a child who's shy in public but loves hamming it up at home might embrace an after-school theater program.

Once options have been discussed with kids, take in a session or two before committing to anything. The shy youngster might visit the local theater program and enjoy it thoroughly, or he or she might decide against it. Either way, a visit will give kids and parents a sense of what the program is like and whether or not it's the right fit. When visiting, observe the nature of the program. Is it an encouraging, vibrant environment? Do the adults and kids involved appear to be having fun?

Parents want their kids to be as safe after school as they are during it. When looking for an extracurricular activity, inquire about the staff-to-child ratio and about the staff's profession-

The District cannot offer 2% or whole milk. In addition, the District will no longer offer milk in 10 ounce containers. The price for milk in the Elementary School increased from $0.50 to $0.55, effective this school year.

Morello informed the group that there are many more changes coming which will include changes to fruit and vegetable servings. "We are trying to stay ahead of the curve," stated Morello.

Student Representative Garrison Doodlesack, questioned the reason for eliminating the 10 ounce containers of milk. Morello answered, "Unfortunately, some restrictions will not be very popular with students." She went on to say, "Some changes will seriously impact what we are allowed to offer. The problem is if you make students take certain things, you will just create waste."

When Morello met with students to get their feedback on the new provisions, she told them that unfortunately, the obesity epidemic has forced changes on what can be allowed on the menu.

In July, Superintendent of Schools Dr. John Doherty presented Alison Elmer as his recommendation for the Director of Student Services position.

Late in May of this year, a Selection Committee began the interview process by interviewing eight candidates.

From these eight candidates, two of the strongest, Alison Elmer and Katherine Vincent Harris, were selected as finalists and interviewed by the School Committee at their June 20th meeting.

Dr. Doherty said both of these women were strong candidates and each one has different strengths. He went on to say that he wanted someone who could continue to move the district. He commended Elmer because she has the capacity and knowledge base and the will to learn.

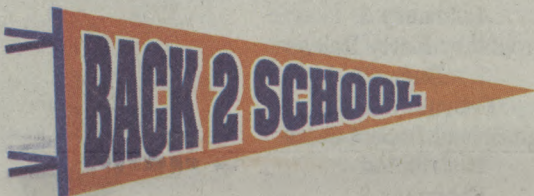

Dr. Doherty said, "I have seen Alison grow stronger from interview to interview. She handled the last interview very well."

School Committee member Hal Croft stated that her resume reflected that she is very interested in the behavior of the entire school.

School Committee member Lisa Gibbs said that she appreciated the hard work that the screening committee did. She also said, "As hard as it is to see Miss Olivera go, I look forward to see how she (Elmer) grows in and among the leadership group."

School Committee Chairman Charles Robinson added, "I am sorry to see Miss Olivera go and I appreciate the district bringing forward such a strong candidate."

The motions to accept Alison Elmer and to authorize the Superintendent to enter into negotiations carried 4-0 in favor. School Committee members Chris Caruso and David Michaud were not in attendance.
